

Ivanishin Galina.

Pedagogical conditions of training of foreign medical students to professional speaking communication

The concept of “pedagogical conditions” is understood as a complex system of measures of the educational process that ensures the creation and development of personal motives for foreign students, and the organization of educational-cognitive activity-oriented career. Pedagogical conditions of learning professional Ukrainian speaking contacts of foreign students in medical schools provide positive motivation for communicative activity of foreign students, communicative direction of learning activities at all stages of training and methodological support. An important factor in learning motivation is the individual strategies of learning. Development of learning motivation professional communication in a foreign language in high school occurred in aspects such as encouraging students to foreign language activities within situations of professional communication; management of foreign language speech activity of students on the basis of simulations of professional communication and organization of interactive learning with regard to communicative and professional approach and defines the role of the teacher in creating a favorable psychological climate and friendly atmosphere. Important pedagogical condition for the successful training of foreign citizens to professional speech is informational and methodological support of training, which includes system information and methodological support and the availability of effective teaching tools: teaching plans and programmes, guidelines, manuals, reference materials, various forms of training, technical training and didactic materials. One of the most important tools in the process of implementing pedagogical conditions of information and methodological support is the availability of benefits, taking into account axiological, professional, cognitive and communicative needs of foreign citizens and meet the software requirements. This worksheets for preparatory, first year and second year and Ukrainian-English-Arabic dictionary of medical terms. The prospect of further research is seen in the improvement of the ways of realization of the educational environment in the educational process of the University.